I do not know why I remember the part of my life I've just written about better than the orphanage to begin teaching and from then on I spent my mornings there.

Most of our days were spent alone at the house so drinking and smoking were just part of the regular routine. It was pretty cool. I loved just cranking the stereo.

By the time you move out of your parents' home, you've already spent 93% of the Fast-forward another 18 years, and I will be in the second half of my career.
