Females also are more likely than males to be diagnosed with eating disorders. This section also discusses methodological approaches to studying possible. Similarly, one study found that females with CAH performed worse than controls on a verbal fluency task [ 50 ], but similar results were not found in a second study [ 48 ]. These studies show sex-atypical cerebral asymmetry and functional connections in homosexual subjects that cannot be primarily linked to reproduction, and suggest a linkage between sexual orientation and neurobiological entities.

A year later, Chiong Tan et al. Some studies showed no differences in sexual functioning between women with caesarean delivery and those with spontaneous vaginal delivery, whereas others reported less dyspareunia for women with caesarean delivery. However, exactly which genes play a role is not yet clear.
